"Cry aloud, spare not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet." Isaiah 58:1

A REVOLUTION AND AN EXPOSÉ

Editorial

Do you still believe the last two years have been all about health? Do you still believe in compliance to the government's medical mandates? Do you still not see that governments worldwide are breaking the laws and abrogating our Constitutional and human rights? Do you know nothing of the Nuremberg Code or of our right to bodily autonomy? Do you still blindly trust in mainstream media, "medical experts," and politicians with their draconian mandates?

If you do, it is likely safe for me to conclude that you are a victim of the devastating effects of mainstream media propaganda. May God expose and break the power of their lies.

This world is so swiftly changing that breaking news is becoming common news. There is tremendous agitation in the spiritual realm. The heavens and the earth are being shaken. Confused and fearful, many are seeking for a refuge, for something solid to stand on.

Where does one run when all the systems of men are failing before their eyes? Who do they turn to? Who can they lean on?

There is a silver lining in all of these unprecedented troubles. The shaking is moving the godless to forsake their own ways and is detaching others from their enslavement to materialistic and selfish lifestyles. Mercy's arms are reaching down from heaven, nudging and prodding honest souls to the True Shepherd and to His true sheepfold. Let the religions of man fall, IT IS TIME TO FIND GOD!

The living church of God is alive and well in this end of time, replete with holy, divinely-called and divinely-gifted apostles and prophets. Upon her, Satan is unleashing his fury. But God is ever in the midst of His true church, therefore: "No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper; and every tongue that shall rise against thee in judgment thou shalt condemn"! Isaiah 54:17. "Be thou exalted, O God"!

Historical Parallel

Amsterdam 1941	Ottawa 2022
In the preceding years, all Dutch citizens have to complete forms based on their Aryan or Jewish status, all Jewish businesses are forced to register, and Jews are removed from civil service. "This insidious process, gradually and methodically implemented, of identifying and separating Jews from everyone else, relegated them to pariah status in their own country."¹ As tensions mount, a German Jew and refugee, Erich Cahn, mistakes German police for Dutch Nazis and sprays ammonium gas at them. The German retaliation is swift. Cahn is arrested, tortured, and shot. Additionally, 425 Jews are brutally rounded up from Amsterdam's streets and deported. This causes a swift reaction from the populace. On February 25, tram drivers and sanitation crews, inspired by leaflets dispersed by the Communist Party, begin the strike that became known as the Februaristaking. The strike quickly grows and soon 300,000 people stand in solidarity with the Jewish population. Factories, offices, restaurants, and shops close. Workers on bicycles ring doorbells and halt traffic in streets, asking people to join the strike. The impressive coordinated action shuts down Amsterdam and catches the Germans completely off guard. The February 1941 General Strike is a rare instant where non-Jews collectively risk everything for their Jewish neighbours. The strike in Amsterdam inspires other strikes in the country. On the second day of the strike, a large police force is mobilized. A state of emergency is declared and the strikers' resistance is broken with brute force.  1] https://nationalww2museum.org/war/articles/amsterdam-general-strike-february-1941	Through a gradual process spanning a couple of years, the unvaccinated are segregated and robbed of their freedoms. Workers are forced to disclose their vaccination status, unvaccinated are fired from their jobs, not given access to visit loved ones in care homes or hospitals, and rejected at restaurants. Even domestic air travel is forbidden to the unvaccinated, while the borders are closed to them, making them prisoners in their own country. Tensions rise as more and more mandates force thousands to get vaccinated in order to keep their employment and support their families. In January 2022, the government, contrary to science and reason, bans all unvaccinated truckers from crossing the border. A nation-wide reaction ensues. The populace is weary of the endless mandates that are robbing Canadian citizens of their freedoms and causing the ostracizing of the unvaccinated. On January 28, truck drivers from across the nation converge in Ottawa in an effort to make their voices heard. The truckers are cheered on by multitudes as they make their way to Ottawa. Thousands join the protest. Other protests are coordinated across the country. Among the protesters are many vaccinated, who join their neighbours in a sincere show of solidarity. Despite all the government's efforts to spurn the unvaccinated, the vaccinated and unvaccinated join hands, take part in public prayers on the streets, and shout together for freedom. The government is taken by complete surprise, and almost a month goes by before the government decides on a course of action. A state of emergency is invoked and the protesters' resistance is broken with brute force.

The fully vaccinated accounted for 9 in every 10 Covid-19 deaths over the past month

The UK Health Security Agency confirms deaths are rising dramatically among the triple-vaccinated population whilst declining steadily among the non-vaccinated population in England.

The most recent figures show the fully vaccinated accounted for 9 in every 10 Covid-19 deaths over the past month and the triple vaccinated accounted for 4 in every 5 of them.

British children are up to 52 times more likely to die following a COVID shot (LifeSiteNews) – Britain's Office for National Statistics (ONS) has released data indicating that children who received the COVID-19 jabs have suffered a death rate 52 times greater than that of their unjabbed counterparts.

The data show a stark increase in deaths among children both single and double-jabbed compared to their unjabbed counterparts. For children aged 15–19, the risk of death increases by almost double if they take the first shot and by over three times if they take the second.

Media Manipulation

And How to Escape It

SIS. EDEL NEUFELD

IT IS ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE TO EVADE. Information, opinions, and narratives are incessantly streaming into our consciousness through the media. With an almost endless list of avenues at its disposal, the media disseminates information to the public. The arrival of the smart phone has only made this dissemination all the more convenient, endless, and inescapable. Newspapers, magazines, books, radio, television, talk shows, news outlets, movies, music, video games, advertisements—every media source is ever-present at our fingertips.

The general population is largely unaware of how this constant bombardment by the media is influencing their minds. Many choices—from fashion preferences to how the populace votes in a presidential election—are directly prompted by the media. Nevertheless, because this inducement is done with such subtlety, the public remains oblivious to the media's power and believes they are making objective choices based on their well-informed knowledge.

It matters little that a large portion of the population around the world distrusts the news media.

According to a 2021 study examining forty countries and their perspective on the media, only 29% of Americans said they trust their news forums.¹ But when one understands the powerful system of the media, it is easy to see that such numbers instill no fear in the owners of the media companies. Their influence is hardly diminished by the mistrust of the populace. Essentially, every avenue of information to the public is controlled, making their influence virtually inescapable. Whether the public trusts the news or not, the people are easily kept under the influence of the media's narrative through a myriad of other avenues.

Many are unaware that almost all sources of information to the public are controlled by only six monolithic media conglomerates. That means nearly everything we read, listen to, and watch is controlled by a mere handful of rich elites! By spreading their influence out into a vast number of subsidiary companies, these media gurus give the populace the impression of being able to impartially choose their source of information, but it is only a crafty illusion of choice.

This consolidation of the media sources enables the media elites to easily push a certain narrative to the public. Speaking of the information given to us about slavery in America in his book, Hustlin' Backward, Stephen Hargrave states, "This unreliable and deliberately twisted historical narrative with all of its false ideas is now, as always, advanced and circulated by organized media outlets which are financed by wicked powers in high places." He continues, "When I say media, I don't just mean conservative, liberal, left, right or all in between. I mean the structure through which information flows and is dispersed to the public. The purpose of these outlets is to keep back the truth by creating, perpetuating, and disseminating false narratives."

Let someone challenge their ultimate agenda and see the beastly power rise to crush any dissenting voice.

The same is done with a multitude of different subjects. The impression is given that there are many viewpoints in the media—conservative, liberal, in-between, etc. That is because there are certain topics that the conglomerates allow to be discussed and debated. Or rather, they encourage their discussion. After all, certain controversial topics cause the population to be divided against itself. This divide and conquer tactic provides the smoke-screen that enables the elites a cover to further their purposes undetected.

But let someone challenge their ultimate agenda and see the beastly power rise to crush any dissenting voice. While censorship has always been there, it has become increasingly obvious in the last few years. Under the name of "consumer protection," Google censors websites that dissent from the mainstream narrative and manipulates their search engine to prioritize websites connected to Big Pharma.

This is no accident, as Big Pharma and Big Media are intricately connected.² Many other media outlets, including YouTube, Facebook, and Twitter, join in the censorship of any information that challenges the narrative being advocated by the elites.

When censorship becomes impossible, the media resorts to shameless smear campaigns. Anyone who challenges the narrative must be prepared to have all the powers that be join in a search for any quote, picture, or story that can be used to disqualify his voice. It matters not if the story must be manipulated, falsified, or taken out of context. What matters is that the masses connect the dissenter with something contemptible. Hence, both politicians and the media will waste no time in attaching certain trigger words to any dissident—extremist, conspiracy theorist, homophobic, cult-like, fringe minority—all in an effort to quench the opposing voice.

Even with this cursory look at the crafty arrangement and workings of the media, it becomes obvious that Jim Morrison was spot-on when he said, “Whoever controls the media, controls the mind.” It is impossible to describe all the ways in which the media abuses this power. But the role of the media is the ability of the “kings of the earth” to keep humanity oppressed, abused, and under its sway is becoming ever more apparent. To call this system evil is a colossal understatement.

Is there any solution? Is there any way to escape the indoctrination and influence of this all-pervasive system? The only method of destroying the media’s powerful influence over the masses would be to completely eschew all its avenues of influence. This would necessitate the populace to turn to another source of information; a source completely detached from the system of the elites. Furthermore, it would require the people to understand the only method of attaining accurate information and understanding.

This true understanding can only come through a prophet. This statement may seem novel to our minds. Nevertheless, it is on this understanding that our only hope of escaping the sway of the media rests. You see, even true journalism cannot provide a complete understanding of the world’s events by itself.

Truthful journalism can provide us with very necessary facts. But to use these facts to reach a complete and accurate understanding of the world’s events requires the spirit of prophecy. This is because history and the current events of the world are inseparably tied with prophecy. As Stephen Hargrave states in his book, “We cannot obtain the fullness of historic accuracy without the prophetic perspective because prophecy is history foretold, and history is prophecy fulfilled.”

The media is quite accurately named, for it is the medium used to dispense information to the masses.

What we must realize is that ultimately, the world’s media is a medium that Satan uses to dispense his narrative to the masses. The elites and media corporations are only his tools to accomplish this goal.

The only method of escape from this indoctrination is to turn to the medium that God has chosen to dispense accurate understanding to the people He died to save—this medium is the prophet. It is only a prophet that possesses the ability to take all the events of the past, present, and future and give an accurate, comprehensive, and perfect portrayal of these events.

During Babylon’s glory under Nebuchadnezzar, the narrative propagated at the time was that Babylon was an indestructible, powerful empire which encompassed within its kingdom the wisest, best-educated, most-talented men in the world. To defy its power and contradict its wisdom seemed not only impossible but also illogical. But Daniel, endowed with the spirit of prophecy, was able to look past the facts as they seemed. He saw Babylon for the fleeting, beastly power that it was, foresaw its fall, and was able to boldly stand up against such a powerful system. While he did so, he was able to encourage the people of God and give them the correct understanding of their current events during their captivity in Babylon.

Both politicians and the media will waste no time in attaching certain trigger words to any dissident—extremist, conspiracy theorist, homophobic, cult-like, fringe minority—all in an effort to quench the opposing voice.

Just so, God has not left us without a prophet in our day. He saw our desperate need for true prophets that could lead the people into the accurate understanding of our time and the events we face. A unified body of prophets has been called forth by God. These men and women have been anointed with prophetic vision that pierces through the facts as they seem, enabling them to see the complete and accurate reality of this world and its events.

We must turn a deaf ear to the elites’ narrative, propagated by the media, that has kept us in indescribable oppression while they have waxed rich by the sale of slaves and souls of men (Rev. 18:13).

It is time to look to the watchmen on the wall and inquire of them, “What do you see?” 📺

Online Activity EVERY MINUTE of the Day

(Note: This graph appears to originate in the United Kingdom.)

You are in a storm, a constant bombardment of messages and media. The amount of search and social media activity every minute has been termed “content shock,” and it is neither psychologically nor spiritually healthy.

“People do not notice how much they depend on mobile phones and what affects their excessive use might bring. The studies show that there is a link between prolonged mobile phone use and serious health damage.”

Today’s ubiquitous technology is addictive and, as a tyrant, does not want to lose its grip on us. How much of your day is spent on a smartphone? Are you addicted?

Christian, does your phone time choke out your time in prayer, meditation, or the reading of God’s Word? This would be Satan’s hope and a sure path to spiritual leanness. Let us not be ignorant of his devices. God help us all! 🙏

Sent from HEAVEN

SIS. KARA BRAUN

IN THE BOOK OF LUKE, we read the rare and vivid account of an exchange between two men who had crossed over from this life into eternity. Lazarus, having lived righteously, had been carried by angels to Paradise; while the rich man, having neglected his soul, had after death lifted up his eyes in hell. Experiencing the horrors of a godless eternity, the rich man now had to grapple not only with the reality of his own sealed fate, but also with the consciousness that his brothers were headed quickly toward the same ruin in comparative oblivion. Perhaps they knew they were in danger of punishment, but they had no idea of the magnitude of torment the rich man was now facing. They must be warned, he knew, and in desperation he pleaded that Lazarus be sent to awaken them to their need of repentance.

“Then he said, I pray thee therefore, father, that thou wouldest send him to my father’s house: For I have five brethren; that he may testify unto them, lest they also come into this place of torment. Abraham saith unto him, They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them. And he said, Nay, father Abraham: but if one went unto them from the dead, they will repent. And he said unto him, If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead” (Luke 16:27-31).

The poignancy of the rich man’s plea is touching. He knew the urgency of getting the message through. He knew that unless they heeded the warning, his brothers were doomed to a state of torment, the agony and endlessness of which they could not understand. He himself had despised Lazarus in life, yet perhaps, if Lazarus would return from the dead, his brothers would listen. But the response was firm: let them deal with the messengers they have already been sent. If they will not hear the common messenger, they will not hear the uncommon.

That such a fateful decision as the choice of the soul’s eternal destiny should be entrusted to time-bound, frail humanity is a staggering thought. Man is frail in comprehension, frail in judgment, frail and limited in the scope of his vision and evaluative ability. Bombarded with sensory input from a world very transient and perishable, and preoccupied with its temporal cares, he is liable to be blinded to the wider realities of timeless life or death. Without a messenger from that other world, he is prone to err—prone to misjudge. And the cost for error is heavy.

Throughout history, God has sent messengers to instruct mankind and guide him into making the right decisions. Some of these messengers have been supernatural beings, but more often, as with Moses and the prophets, they have come in the form of flesh and blood. God knows humanity’s frailty and his need of a guide, a shepherd, a prophet, a watchman, an overseer. In merciful love, He has divinely created, called, and commissioned men of special gifting and vision to fill the gap in humanity’s knowledge. He has prospered or judged men and nations according to how they have handled His messengers.

Prophet after prophet was sent from God to the people with messages of warning or exhortation.
Some heard and found healing, salvation, and enlightenment. Others rebelled to their own perdition.

Lot's escape from Sodom depended upon his response to God's messengers. Lot was a righteous man vexed with Sodom's evil deeds. When God sent messengers to warn him of impending judgment, he received them well and listened to their message. Still, his mind struggled to grasp the full import of their words. Either slow to cut off old attachments or simply too overcome to think clearly in the moment of crisis, Lot lingered dangerously in the doomed city. Comprehending what he could not, the angels took hold of his hand and the hands of his family members, and fairly carried him to safety. He survived by yielding them his hand.

Jacob, about to face the brother he had cheated, and finding himself alone in a wrestling match with God, recognized that the success or failure of his whole life's course hinged at that point on the success or failure of his interaction with the angel. As the night wore on and the struggle gained intensity, he was crippled by the angel's own hand; but finding the courage to hold on until the angel chose to bless him, he walked away a changed man.

These were supernatural encounters, but they are by far not the only recorded instances of God's intervening to send help or judgment by the hand of a messenger uniquely in contact with heaven. The country of Egypt was judged and the nation of Israel called out of bondage by the hand of Moses. Korah and his company were swallowed by the earth for rebelling against Moses the man. Israel suffered more than three years of no rain at the word of Elijah but saw the windows of heaven opened again in answer to his prayer.

In the same way, prophet after prophet was sent from God to the people with messages of warning or exhortation. Some heard and found healing, salvation, and enlightenment. Others rebelled to their own perdition.

Scripture speaks to us of heavenly treasure sent to us in earthen (human) vessels (2 Cor. 4:7). How often have we been tempted to undervalue the messengers God has sent our way on express mission to warn us of error or to uncover some unsuspected plot of the enemy? How often have we been tempted to question their message because it did not match with our thinking? They are human. They are one of us. They may even, as Moses, have made some mistake. They appear, while among us, in many respects as commoners. But they are the farthest thing from common. And while we look for God's communications through special events or uncommon means, we are in danger of missing the extreme value of the messengers we have been sent.

We have but one life to live and but one chance to make the choice that will land us in eternal blessing or eternal torment. The choice is too big to make casually. May we open our hearts to the message from heaven and reach out in faith to those heaven has sent. 📖

The Seventh Trumpet Angel

The brilliance of the morning
Had long since been obscured;
The evening was approaching
Yet darkness still endured.
Till rising in defiance
Unto the coming night
The world beheld an Angel
Arrayed in gospel light.

As piercing rays of sunlight
Dispersed the clouds of night
The earth began to tremble,
And men awoke in fright.
The powers of the darkness
Began to fear and quake
As rays of Truth uncovered
The lies that they create.

Since light began compelling
The darkness to recede,
And since the thrones of judgment
Have been restored indeed,
A glorious crescendo
Of brilliant gospel light
The Seventh Trumpet Angel
Has opened to our sight!

Since we have reached the golden
And glorious latter reign
Of apostolic judges
Who sever chaff from grain,
The saints again are yielding
A hundredfold display
Of heavenly abundance
As at the dawn of day.

SIS. SUSAN MUTCH

COVID-19: THE GREAT RESET

KLAUS SCHWAB
THIERRY MALLERET

REVOLUTION! After two years of serious government overreach under the guise of a pandemic, the bruised and oppressed of Canada sounded forth with mighty honking and put the Revolution into DRIVE! The oppression must stop! Leading the charge were truckers from the west and the east, from the north and the south. The record-breaking convoy rolled and roared towards Ottawa, the capital city of Canada, to demand an end to the illegal and inhumane mandates.

Disregarding the cold winds and snow of winter, masses of Canadians of all ages flocked to the highways and overpasses jumping, waving, and cheering. Hope revived for the groaning nation, tears flowed, and hearts united as never before—defying the government's divisive tools of masks and vaxes.

Igniting inspiration worldwide, other countries took to the highways in convoys of their own.

With the government being heedless to the voice of the groaning populace, heedless even to the voice of science, the people determined to be heard at the very doorsteps of their parliament. Here they protested peacefully, day after day. But the oppressor was oblivious to the cry of the oppressed. Not only did Prime Minister Trudeau refuse to speak with a delegate, he, in typical tyrant fashion, spewed forth blatant falsehoods to demonize the lawful and peaceful protesters. Mainstream media, his propaganda mouthpiece and partner-in-crime, parroted the same.

With a grassroots challenge to the COVID ruse knocking at his door, the Prime Minister opted to rid them by force. Not interested in having his nefarious agenda disrupted, he took the unprecedented step of giving himself sweeping powers by invoking the Federal Emergencies Act to end a peaceful and legal protest.

This move was entirely uncalled for and never met the criterion of the Act. Yet, exposing himself as the totalitarian dictator that he is, Mr. Trudeau proceeded to further rob the people of their rights and freedoms. Government would do as it pleased, law or no law. We know the results—brute police force on the streets of Ottawa against unarmed, peaceful, and legal protestors as they shouted, “Freedom!” in the face of guns, batons, tear gas, and riot police. This is the true account. You will not hear it from the corrupt halls of mainstream

Chrystia Freeland, Canada's Deputy Minister, was quite prompt to declare that the Emergencies Act measures would then be permanent! Permanent! Forget constitutional rights, the government will do as it pleases. Freeze bank accounts without a court order, seize goods, fine and jail you for any public gathering not government-approved, and on down the fascist road it goes.

Mr. Trudeau did revoke the Emergencies Act, albeit after the Freedom Convoy had been forcefully removed. And, in typical government fashion, some of the measures remain permanent.

An Agenda Exposed

To understand Mr. Trudeau's contemptible and lawless response, you must understand where his loyalties lie. It is painfully obvious that it is not to the Canadian public or to protect Canadian democracy or sovereignty. To the contrary, he is serving a globalist agenda, having been trained as a “Young Global Leader” in the school of Klaus Schwab, founder of the World Economic Forum (WEF). The Prime Minister of Canada is looking to open up his country to a “great reset”—goodbye to what is left of our freedoms, hello fascism. These things are in open view. Check out the WEF website and meet some of the “Great Reset” players. The Canadian government has been highly infiltrated. Chrystia Freeland is even on the WEF Board of Trustees.¹

The following quote comes out of the mouth of Klaus Schwab himself:²

The notion to integrate young leaders is part of the World Economic Forum since many years. And I have to say, when I mention names like Mrs. Merkel, even Vladimir Putin, and so on, they all have been Young Global Leaders of the World Economic Forum. But what we are very proud of now, the young generation like Prime Minister Trudeau, President of Argentina, and so on, that we penetrate the cabinets. So, yesterday, I was at a reception for Prime Minister Trudeau, and I know that half of his cabinet or even more than half of his cabinet are actually Young Global Leaders of the World Economic Forum.

Klaus Schwab, with his WEF club and Davos elites, have an agenda; a global New World Order (NWO) agenda, a.k.a. “The Great Reset.” I know this reads like a conspiracy theory, and would that it was but a fanciful theory, but it is a truth that is no longer hidden. Do your research.

It is my prayer that the thinking populace saw the snake that stuck out its head in Ottawa during the current events and realize the gravity of what just happened. We witnessed the equivalent to Martial Law being unleashed on law-abiding citizens—not in China, not in Russia, but in Canada!

Promptly after, Chrystia Freeland announced the measures would then be permanent. Talk about a major leap towards a dangerous reset in this country! These unprecedented steps are chilling.

If two years of draconian, unconstitutional medical tyranny has had you wondering what is going on, what just transpired in Ottawa ought to have you aghast. And except God intervene, it foreshadows a freedomless, oppressive future.

If this went unnoticed by you, I expect you will just roll over in your deep sleep, and continue in your blind compliance to draconian mandates while the government further robs you of your rights, freezes your bank accounts, and jails you at will...for starters.

The Oppressed Unite

The Freedom Convoy was birthed from the groans of oppressed citizens. We stand with them in that cry, the cause being just. At its inception, who could have dreamed of how this move was about to unite the human family in a bond of love and brotherhood in a way this generation has never before witnessed; how it would move many in this secularized country to pray together in public and cause others to be personally awakened to their need of God and salvation. Truly, God is a master at working good in the very face of evil.

The world has felt the impact and found renewed courage to resist tyranny. For all of this good, we give thanks to God.

Yet in all of this, protests cannot bring the solution against the evil we are facing in this time.

A War Against God

This is not about politics. Neither is it about masks or injections. This is a war against God; of good against evil; of light against darkness. Much lurks behind the surface. Here no protest can avail. Lifting up a voice of resistance is good and necessary. The people must speak out. But this in itself cannot overthrow the powers of darkness we are up against. IT WILL TAKE THE POWER OF GOD. He has restored His church in this end time and raised up apostles and prophets to “lift up [their] voice like a trumpet” in this evil day.

Who is Justin Trudeau working for?

In ancient days, God allowed Pharaoh to continue in his obstinate resistance that His own power would be more greatly displayed. He used Pharaoh to make bare His arm in the deliverance of His oppressed people. God is doing the same today. While He is uncovering the wicked systems of man for all to see, He is working a divine awakening in honest souls and gathering them unto Himself.

Let the devil lash out in fury against God and His church; let him expose himself for all to see. The darker the night, the more brilliant will be the light of victory when Almighty God sends down fire from heaven and devours our enemies (Rev. 20:7-9). Babylon will fall with all of its corrupt systems of man (Revelation 18)!

May God haste the day when He makes bare His arm and the nations will know that He is God! 📖

A Prophetic Look at Protests

BRO. THOMAS TOVSTIGA

“And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people.” Revelation 14:6.

There are no answers to this world’s problems except in the gospel. While we recognize that God works through times of unrest, and, by the brooding of His Spirit causes mass awakenings among the common people, yet no uprising, protest, or demonstration of the people is in itself the answer to society’s ills. Indeed, a secular solution to the world’s predicament is an utter impossibility. Implement man’s most ingenious reforms or stage his most drastic revolts, but leave out the gospel, and man will assuredly default to his original cry, “O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me?”

Every movement or initiative, however sincere, established outside the foundation of the sure prophetic Word, will simply become part of the ceaseless raging of the heathen, and every outcry, though justified, will be lost in the cacophony of myriads of such voices. Therefore, our solidarity with the resistance of tyranny is always founded on the people’s rejection of oppression, and not on faith in the efficacy of a certain protest.

We have been sent to the masses with the sole purpose to call them out. With Moses of old we will go out to our brethren in humanity to “look on their burdens” and with the prophet Ezekiel we will sit where they sit, yet never at the cost of deleting the gospel. We go out, not to join one of the factions of “deliverance,” but as a distinct, prophetic entity, an unashamed cloud of witnesses, as the church of the living God with divinely called apostles and prophets under the leadership of Apostle D. Ray Tinsman in our day.

Recognizing that we are firstly citizens of a heavenly land, we come not as superficial patriots, but as those who, out of a loving burden and respect for their country and in the unworldly spirit of true patriotism, point their fellow citizens to their one hope of succour. We appear on the scene of human turmoil as God’s church, the only vehicle to fulfill the consummate, end-time prophecy. No demonstration, however warranted, will ever replace God’s apostolic body as the mouthpiece of true rejection of oppression. The downtrodden will never be liberated unless they renounce with us the hidden things of dishonesty, and with us flow up to Mount Sion. The voices of tyrannized multitudes must blend with our voice, which is the voice of God’s watchmen singing out the message of Restoration in harmony that only prophetic unison can produce.

Ours is not a war primarily against mandates, specific legislation, or even a government, but against a system that can add, modify, or entirely remove any laws (or people) and still be the system. Hence, this present Armageddon cannot be won by decisions in Parliament, Congress, the Senate, or the courts, nor can it be fought with banners, megaphones, blockades, convoys, marches, or the ballot. Ah, yes, see the Eighth Beast’s game! Distressed by oppression, the people move, forcing the system to move also. A shout of victory erupts! But alas, the pieces have only been rearranged. The game is still on.

Be it far from us to belittle the outcry of any of our oppressed brothers and sisters. If we did so, their very blood would condemn us, for still now it cries from the ground and has come before the ears of God Almighty. As part of one human family, we appreciate and rally behind the protesting of unjust mandates, bearing up in our prayers the cause of a weary and groaning populace. Yet, rarely has

ARMAGEDDON NEWS

REPORTED BY BRO. DANIEL EICHELBERGER

Never has the world been more connected. Never has news been so easily consumed. Never have the news items been so bleak or spoken so much of the beastly nature of man, the prevalence of evil in this world, and the stranglehold that sin has on modern societies.

I confess that we are stymied by the sheer volume of headlines that scream at me from news feeds and online news consortiums. It is staggering. As a reporter for the Gospel Trumpet, my job is usually easy. Select a few newsworthy items to highlight in this section of the paper. But in recent years, the pace at which shocking events and statements have occurred has accelerated. I am at a loss as to which items to include in my report for this issue. Which ones beg to be published? They all beggar description!

Should I tell you about the plight of 34 year-old Malingumu Bruhan from Uganda, who was held hostage and beaten by his uncles for converting to Christianity from Islam and holding open-air meetings? I could tell you about how his relatives went to get some petrol to light him on fire, and what spared him from certain martyrdom was the persistence of his friend who came looking for him and knew the relatives were lying when they said he wasn't there when he espied his shoe that had slipped off his foot when they dragged him away for the beating. But Muslims have always persecuted converts to Christianity. That is old-school-type news.

But what about the imprisonment of Pastor Artur Pawlowski in the modern "liberal" democracy of Canada for doing what a pastor is supposed to do: preaching to the people? Pastor Pawlowski's latest offence (he's been arrested and fined before for insisting on performing his duties despite the pandemic) was preaching to truckers participating in the recent Freedom Convoy to Ottawa. He has been denied bail and sits in solitary confinement as of this writing. Surely this is a more noteworthy example of the assault on truth and righteousness.

And speaking of the Freedom Convoy, surely the brutal crackdown by Trudeau upon his countrymen bears highlighting, doesn't it? I could tell you about the implementation of martial law to clear the utter danger of absolutely peaceful protests, of the trampling of people by Mounted Police on horses, of the beating and physical assault on passive truckers by law enforcement officers in Ottawa, while the world looked on and politicians in Parliament traded barbs and sought to blame each other for the disaffection of the populace.

I could write about German Bishop Georg Bätzing's recent statements that homosexual sex "doesn't affect one's relationship with God," and how he is lobbying the Vatican to "partially change the catechism" to allow for such things because, evidently, no one follows the Catholic church's teachings on sexuality anymore. Or, on the flipside of this hot button issue, I could tell you about how Lutheran Bishop Juhana Pohjola is on trial for hate speech in Finland for preaching the biblical view on sexuality. Finns, it would seem, have no room for biblical society. But how are they really different from our own?

You would probably like to hear about Southern Illinois University ordering a student to have no contact with three of her fellow students simply because they are afraid her views might make them uncomfortable. But to dig into that, I wouldn't have space to bring you up to speed on Oregon's Senate vote to force insurance companies to pay for abortion claims and contraception. And I wouldn't have room to mention Wales's new policy that makes mail-order abortion a permanent reality in that country.

And then there is the Swedish company, Epicenter, that is working to make implantable computer chips a reality for humans, a perfect way to maintain your Covid passport portfolio at the scan of your hand. But time and space in this section is obviously limited. We wouldn't then be able to include anything about Iowa's governor signing a ban on transgender athletes in girls' sports. Nor could we report on the New York State Department of Education's promotion of the book, Gender Queer: a Memoir, which, according to Breitbart News, "features explicit drawings of teens performing oral sex, among other acts." There is just not room to go into more detail, except to say that the Department has said it was "not aware of the graphic nature of the contents of the book, which is not apparent from its title."

Isn't that why one should open the book and read it before endorsing it? But we digress. We are running out of precious room.

So, dear reader, you see our dilemma. We haven't even touched on the war in the Ukraine, the collapse of the Russian economy, the dropping of Covid mandates and restrictions all over the world, or the predictions by a gay activist that the LGBTQ movement will bring about the end of the church (and how the United Methodists and the Church of the Brethren lend credence to that prophecy by splitting over the issue in real time).

We leave it to you then, this time at least, to inform yourselves. Learn what is happening in this world. See if it doesn't look more like the field of Armageddon now than it did last issue. And ask yourself this question: If God does not judge such a world as this, might He owe Sodom and Gomorrah an apology? 📖

the protesting of governmental decrees struck any fear into the heart of this beastly system. Over the course of millennia, it has perfected its moveable ways, and has well practiced its subtle art of disguise, becoming expert at re-presenting itself. Through its vile cunning it quickly and almost automatically devours and assimilates even the most righteous cause, many times with no more effort than by simply joining it.

By contrast, however, the neverreactive nature of prophecy is divinely immune to the kings of the earth's manipulative and perverting agenda, and therefore its effect cannot be highjacked, twisted, or bought. It therefore remains the only prophetically legal and lethal weapon to judge "that Wicked." 2 Thess. 2:8.

It was the apostles' preaching that decimated Demetrius' pagan economy, sparking a two-hour riot in Ephesus. The preaching of Paul caused Felix the governor to tremble in his own judgment hall. Stephen's Holy Ghost prophesying was the sword that cut stiff-necked Pharisees to the heart, making them gnash on him with their teeth. Yes, the word of the apostles' testimony alone was powerful enough to locate, lay hold of, bind, and cast down the great red dragon and his angels, and remains the only power able to effect true revolution today. Amen. 📖

What Salvation Does

ADAM CLARKE

"That he would grant unto us, that we being delivered out of the hand of our enemies might serve him without fear, In holiness and righteousness before him, all the days of our life."

Luke 1:74-75

The salvation brought by Jesus Christ consists in the following things:

1. We are to be delivered out of the hand of our enemies and from all that hate us, so that sin shall neither have dominion over us, nor existence in us.
2. We are to worship God, to render Him that service and adoration which the letter and spirit of His religion require.
3. Ye are to live in holiness, a strict inward conformity to the mind of Christ—and righteousness, a full outward conformity to the precepts of the gospel.
4. This is to be done before God, under the continual influence and support of His grace, and with a constant evidence of His presence and approbation.
5. This state is a state of true happiness—it is without fear. Sin is all cast out, holiness is brought in; God's power upholds, and His approbation cheers and comforts the believing heart. Thus misery is precluded and happiness established.
6. This blessedness is to continue as long as we exist—all the days of our life, in all ages, in all situations, and in all circumstances. What a pity to have lived so long without God in the world, when so much happiness and glory are to be enjoyed in union with Him! 📖

OBITUARY

SIS. LINDA RAE SECHRIST
Ordained Minister of the Church of God

Sis. Linda Rae Sechrist passed peacefully from this world to the next in the early morning hours of Saturday, January 22, 2022, at the age of 55.

Sis. Linda was wonderfully saved from sin in 1992 and took her stand with the church of God in 2004. She was called by God to preach and was ordained in 2018.

She was very passionate about real womanhood and showed the world the dignity of being a wife, guiding her home, and loving, nurturing, and educating her children. Her mother-heart would not permit others to care for her children. She therefore joyfully forfeited her business career, the promise of upward mobility, and what is known as "The American Dream" to pour all of her love and energy into the rearing of her children.

Our beloved sister will be deeply missed by her family, friends, and all the saints. Although we grieve her death, we rejoice in the assurance of knowing that she has obtained a glorious reward and eternal rest with her Saviour.
